Health Promotion

Pre reading questions:

- 1- How can health promotion affect people's lives?
- 2- How can we widely spread health promotion strategies?

Health promotion is the process of enabling people to increase, control, and improve their health. The purpose of health promotion is to positively affect the health behavior of individuals and communities as well as the living and working conditions that influence their health.

Why is health promotion important?

- Health promotion improves the health status of individuals, families, communities, and the nations.
- Health promotion enhances the quality of life for all people.
- By focusing on prevention, health promotion reduces the costs that individuals, employers, families, communities, and the nation would spend on medical treatment.

Who provides health promotion/health education?

Some people specialize in health education (trained and/or certified as health education specialists). Others perform specific educational tasks as part of their job (medical treatment, nursing, social work etc....) to encourage healthy behavior .

Where are health educators employed?

In schools, health educators teach health as a subject and promote School Health Programs, including health services, student, staff and parent health education, in addition to healthy school environment .

In companies and workplaces, health educators perform employee counseling as well as education services. They design, lead and evaluate programs about weight control, hypertension, nutrition, physical fitness, stress management and smoking cessation .Also, they educate individuals to protect, promote or maintain their health and reduce wrong behaviors .

In community and governmental organizations health educators can help to produce, and evaluate mass media health campaigns.

Nurses' roles in health promotion practice:

Nurses can be considered general health promoters, with their health promotion activities based on big knowledge and giving information to patients. Every contact with a patient can be an educational experience for him or her .For example, while changing the dressing of a diabetic foot ulcer, there is an opportunity to discuss blood sugar testing and diabetic control. During a home visit to discuss newborn care, it is the best opportunity for the nurse to discuss the childhood vaccine schedule, recommended vitamin supplements. Nurses are practicing health promotion strategies constantly.

Unit (2)

Overpopulation

Pre- reading questions:

- 1-Why do you think overpopulation is a global issue?
- 2- What are the main reasons for overpopulation?

Overpopulation refers to an undesirable condition in which the number of existing human being exceeds the actual carrying capacity of the earth . It has many causes which range from a decline in the death rate to early marriage and more.

The reasons for overpopulation

One of the main reasons for overpopulation is the difference between the death rate and the overall birth rate in the population . The only way to find balance in this is by equalizing the number of deaths per birth but this hasn't happened . Technological advancements have made it easier for people to have children and at the same time the death rate is so low because of health facilities which help people live longer lives. While all this is good for mankind , it isn't good for the environment and the future. We have to create policies that help people to get a better understanding of the overpopulation crisis and create stricter laws on birth control

Effects of overpopulation

The ill-effects of overpopulation are quite severe . The first one is that natural resources deplete at a faster level. Overpopulation causes environmental damage including deforestation, pollution ,etc., there is the degradation of the environment which happens because of the overuse of resources like coal, oil and natural gas. As a result , the quality of air also gets affected in this manner. It also causes more diseases . Next up , we have the issue of unemployment which gives rise to crimes . We also have pandemics and epidemics which spread faster due to overpopulation

It is because overpopulation and unhygienic living gives rise to infectious diseases . Another ill- effect is malnutrition and starvation. We also face a shortage of water which makes it harder for people in some areas to get it . Also we witness faster climate change as nations continue to develop their industrial capacities . Thus , they emit industrial waste which gives rise to global temperature.

Solutions to Overpopulation

The best solution is family planning . In order to do that , one can ensure proper spacing between the births of the children. Further , limiting the number of children must be important . Also media must tell and ensure the danger of overpopulation. Moreover ,better education can help implement social change which can curb overpopulation . It is essential to empower women to learn about reproductive health.

Many governments already have various policies which relate to tax exemptions for curbing overpopulation. For instance , some waive a certain part of income tax for married couples with one or two children.

2- Read the following passage , then answer the question:

In fact , water is the main source of life . Without water , life on Earth would have been impossible. Man , like animals and plants would have died without it. Water is necessary for both agriculture and industry as well as all aspects of life. We get water from rain , rivers, wells and sometimes from seas and lakes after removing salt from their water. People use fresh water for many purposes . They use it for drinking , cooking , watering plants and other daily things. To increase the supply of water , dams have been built to store extra water behind them to use it in the time of need like the High Dam in Egypt .To solve the problem of water shortage, the world should economize in using water in all fields . Another solution is reusing water, this means using water again instead of wasting it away.

Unit: Three

Florence Nightingale

Pre – reading questions :

- 1- What role did Florence play in modern nursing ?
- 2- Florence insisted on achieving her goal .Discuss .

Florence Nightingale was born into an upper-class British family in Florence, Italy in 1820. She was named after the town where she was born. She had just an older sister. The family moved back to London when Florence was a young girl. Florence was educated by her father who taught her things most girls wouldn't have learned at that time such as Latin, Maths, philosophy and history. Florence went against her family's wishes when she announced her plans to become a nurse. They didn't think it was a proper job for someone as wealthy and well-educated as Florence. She went to a nursing school in Germany.

Florence worked as a nurse in a hospital in Turkey during the Crimean War (1853-1856): Russia against England, France and the Ottoman Empire .She discovered that hospitals were crowded and dirty. Soldiers were dying more often from infectious diseases than from their injuries in the war. Florence made sanitary improvements that helped to stop this problem .While she was working in Crimea, she became known as “The Lady with the Lamp” because she was walking around the hospital in the evening carrying a lamp. She checked on the soldiers. She kept working even after everyone else had gone to sleep.

Florence is the founder of modern nursing. In 1860, she opened the first training school for nurses. It was called the Nightingale Training School. Florence wrote over 200 books, reports and pamphlets about how hospitals should be arranged and run. This includes Notes on Nursing, a book explaining basic nursing skills such as hygiene, nutrition and how to set up a sickroom.

Florence's work reached far beyond the shores of England. She helped to improve medical care in India by working to establish a public health service. Also, she supervised Linda Richards, the first professionally trained nurse in America. In 1907, Florence became the first woman to be awarded the Order of Merit. she died in 1910 in London.

The Necklace

Pre-reading questions:

- 1- How did Mathilde feel towards her life ?
- 2- How was Mathilde's life changed dramatically?

A lady, Mathilde Loisel lived in a flat with her husband. He worked as a clerk. They were not able to live a luxurious life. However, they were not poor, merely simple. Mathilde's desire was to be rich. She felt disappointed and sad of not having a large house. Moreover, she desired to have good dresses and lots of jewelry.

One day her husband brought her an invitation to a party. He thought she would be very excited about seeing the invitation. However, his wife, instead of being happy, threw away the invitation and started crying. She complained about not having a pretty dress to wear on such a great occasion. Her husband gave her four hundred francs he had saved to buy it. The week of the party approached. His wife seemed to be anxious again. She was upset as she felt that she didn't have any jewelry to wear with the dress. Her husband suggested that perhaps she could borrow something from her friend Jeanne Forestier. Mathilde went to Jeanne's house and was offered a sparkling diamond necklace to borrow.

She and her husband attended the party and had a wonderful time. Finally, they headed home very late. When they arrived home, Mathilde realized that the necklace was missing. Her husband went out to search the streets but returned empty handed. They had to find another necklace that matched the missing one, but it cost thirty-six thousand francs. Her husband fortunately inherited eighteen thousand francs from his father, but they needed to borrow the rest of the money. Finally, Mathilde gave it to Jeanne who didn't even look at it.

The next ten years Mathilde's life changed dramatically. They moved to a smaller apartment. She had to find a job and worked hard with her husband, who had multiple jobs, to pay back all the money they borrowed. After ten years, the money was all paid back, but Mathilde aged and her face features changed a great deal.

One day she saw Jeanne Forestier on the street. She decided to tell her the truth about the necklace. Jeanne was surprised by Mathilde's appearance. Mathilde explained that it was because of losing the necklace she borrowed from her since they had to pay for a replacement. Shocked, Jeanne told Mathilde that the necklace she borrowed was a fake and worth no more than five hundred francs.

Success

Pre – reading questions :

- 1- Why do successful people need to always learn new skills?
- 2- People who possess a growth mindset are always successful. Discuss.

How do we define success? There are many different views for how to be successful in life. Our individual definition of what success is may vary, but many might define it as being wealthy, happy, safe, healthy, and loved. In general it can be defined as the ability to reach our goals in life, whatever those goals may be. So what can we do to boost our chances of achieving these things? What are some of the habits of successful people?

There are some basic steps we can follow that can improve our chances of being successful in life, work, or whatever happens to be important to us like:

Building a Growth Mindset

Research suggests that there are two basic mindsets that influence how people think about themselves and their abilities: the fixed mindset and the growth mindset. People who possess a fixed mindset believe that things such as intelligence are static and unchangeable. They believe that success isn't a result of hard work—it's simply a consequence of innate talents.

Because they believe that such talents are something people are either born with or without, they tend to give up more easily in the face of a challenge. They quit when things do not come easily because they believe that they lack the inborn skill needed to excel.

Those who have a growth mindset, on the other hand, feel that they can change, grow, and learn through effort. People who believe that they are capable of growth are more likely to achieve success. When things get tough, they look for ways to improve themselves and keep working toward success.

Learning new skills.

When facing a challenge, we need to look for ways to develop the knowledge and skills that we need to overcome obstacles.

Considering failures as learning experiences.

Failure isn't necessarily a reflection of our abilities. Instead, we should see it as a valuable source of experience from which we can learn and improve. If something didn't work so this time I'll try something a little different.

Challenging ourselves

Pursuing a goal that is achievable, but not necessarily easy, is a great way to increase motivation to succeed. Challenges can keep us interested in a task and improve our self-esteem.

Exercises

1- Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

In Egypt, the tourism industry has come to hold a position of great importance . It is felt that it could help increase the national income. In some European countries, tourism has brought in billions of dollars yearly, although they lack the natural and historical attractions we have in Egypt. Our tourists today want efficient and friendly service. They would probably prefer to try our local food rather than to eat the international meals, which are served, in some places. It must also be remembered that most tourists nowadays are not rich. Many of them are students or hardworking employees. So what is needed is not expensive hotels but clean comfortable places to sleep and eat in at reasonable prices. This, too, would encourage Egyptians to travel more and more around their lovely country.

A)-Answer the following questions:

- 1-Why has tourism become very important?
- 2- How can some European countries benefit from tourism ?
- 3- What does our tourist need?

B)-Choose the correct answer:

1-The writer feels that Egypt has got.....the other countries which make so much money from tourism.

- | | |
|----------------------------|-----------------------------|
| a) less attractions than | b) the least attractions of |
| c) the same attractions as | d) more attractions than |

2-Our hotels should be

Dr. Mostafa A. El-Sayed

Pre-reading questions:

- 1- What did Dr. Mostafa develop?
- 2- How was his childhood?

Dr. Mostafa El-Sayed is an internationally renowned Egyptian physical chemist and a leading nanoscience researcher. After spending a long time in teaching, Professor El-Sayed turned his attention to developing new approaches to cancer treatment.

Dr. Mostafa was born in 1933 in Zefta in Egypt. He was the youngest of seven children. He lost both his parents when he was ten years old. Nevertheless, his childhood was full of love in the family of his older brother Mohammed.

El-Sayed attended primary and secondary school in the village. He graduated with a BS from the Faculty of Science at Ain Shams University in 1953, and began a career as a teacher in the faculty, where, he said, he used to spend entire days at the university teaching and conducting experiments in the laboratories. Noticing quite by accident one day a newspaper advertisement for fellowships in his field at Florida State University, he applied, and soon found himself taking course equivalency exams, all of which he passed, to the amazement of his examiners, as he was the first foreign student to do so.

He received his PhD from Florida State University in 1958. He joined the Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry at the University of California in 1961, where he taught until he joined the Georgia Institute of Technology Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry in 1994.

Professor El-Sayed and his group did research in nanoscience, making and studying the properties of nanometer materials. His research in nano medicine had a personal dimension. In "Al-Ahram" interview he spoke of the death of his wife from cancer in 2005 after a five-year struggle with the disease. He said he had worked in nanotechnology since graduation, but it was only after the death of his wife that he started to think seriously of using it in treating cancer.

After El-Sayed and his team of 70 researchers had labored for two years, they developed an effective treatment for skin cancer using gold nanoparticles. The treatment was first tested on animals and some human cells and was found to kill cancer cells that appeared under the microscope as light spots, leaving healthy cells unharmed.

Throughout his career El-Sayed was awarded honors and awards almost too numerous to mention. Chief among these are King Faisal International Prize in the Sciences in 1990. In 2000 he was elected fellow of the American Physical Society and of the American Association for the Advancement of Sciences. He received the 2007 US National Medal of Science in Chemistry. In 2009 he became an honorary fellow of the Chinese Chemical Society. Also, Professor El-Sayed has been nominated for the Nobel Prize.

Unit Eight

Blood Banks

Pre-reading questions

- 1-How long can blood be kept?
- 2-What is the purpose of blood banks?

Blood is essential to help patients survive surgeries , cancer treatment, and some chronic diseases . This lifesaving care starts with one person making a generous donation. This donated blood can be used later in blood transfusion which means giving blood to people who need it .This need for blood is constant .The place where we keep blood is called a blood bank.

Types of blood groups

There are four main blood groups A, B, AB and O . Your blood group is determined by genes you inherit from your parents . Doctors found that people can give blood of group O to anyone safely. They found that they can give any kind of blood to people of group AB , But they found that they must give A- group blood to A- group people and B- group blood to B- group people.

What is the importance of examining the donated blood ?

Doctors must make sure that the donated blood , or blood products , are safe and free of diseases or infections before they are used in blood transfusion and other medical procedures .

What are the criteria to donate blood? Who are eligible to donate blood?

- Age. Donor should be at the age of 18 to 65
- Weight . The donors should not be less than 45 kilograms
- Pulse .Temperature and pulse of the donor should be normal.

Who cannot donate blood?

You cannot donate if you have a cold , flu , sore throat or any infectious disease.

What is the benefit of donating blood?

Regular blood donation is linked to lower blood pressure and a lower risk for heart attacks

How long can blood components be stored in a blood bank?

Each unit of whole blood can be separated into several components. Red blood cells may be stored under refrigeration for a maximum of 42 days . Platelets are stored at a room temperature and may be kept for a maximum of five to seven days. Fresh frozen plasma is kept in a stored frozen state for up to one year.

How often can people donate blood?

- Most people can donate blood every 56 days ,
- Most people can donate red blood cells every 112 days
- You can donate platelets once every 7 days , up to 24 times a year.
- You can donate plasma every 28 days to 13 times a year.

Blood donors report feeling a sense of great satisfaction after making their blood donation. Why? Because helping others in need just feels good. Finally ,remember that when you donate blood you may save someone's life .

Exercises

1-Read the following passage , then answer the questions:

The celebration of Earth Day began in the city of San Francisco and was started by their mayor at the request of John McConnell. The first Earth Day celebration was held on March 21, which was the first day of spring. Earth Day is important because it reminds us to stop and look at the problems of our environment. This causes health problems to people living on Earth. Each of us must do our part to recycle and reuse products instead of throwing them away. The trash we deliver to our landfills each week is taking up valuable land and space we need for homes and farms. Earth Day is now celebrated each year on April 22 nd. Schools around the world take part in making sure that our world is a cleaner place. Students volunteer to pick up trash at their schools, homes, and neighborhoods to do their part in helping our environment.

Unit (10)

Positive Thinking

Pre – reading questions :

- 1- Why is exercise important for positive thinking?
 - 2- Surrounding yourself with positive people is significant.
- Discuss.

Positive thinking is the practice of focusing on the good in any given situation. It can have a big impact on your physical and mental health. That doesn't mean you ignore reality or make light of problems. It simply means you approach the good and the bad in life with the expectation that things will go well.

The Benefits of Positive Thinking

Many studies have looked at the role of positive thinking in mental and physical health.

Some physical benefits may include:

- Lower chance of having heart problems
- Better physical health
- Greater resistance to illness such as the common cold
- Better blood pressure
- Better stress management
- Better pain tolerance

The mental benefits may include:

- More creativity
- Better problem-solving skills
- Clearer thinking
- Better mood

- Better coping skills
- Less depression

When people in a study were exposed to the flu and common cold, those with a positive attitude were less likely to get sick and reported fewer symptoms. In another study of people over the age of 50, those who had more positive thoughts about aging lived a better life . They also had less stress-related problems, which shows one possible link between their thoughts and health. People with a positive attitude may be more likely to live a healthy lifestyle since they have a more hopeful view of the future.

How to Practice Positive Thinking

- Be open to humor. Give yourself permission to smile or laugh, especially during difficult times. Seek humor in everyday happenings. When you can laugh at life, you feel less stressed.
- Follow a healthy lifestyle. Aim to exercise for about 30 minutes on most days of the week. You can also break it up into 5- or 10-minute chunks of time during the day. Exercise can positively affect mood and reduce stress. Follow a healthy diet to fuel your mind and body. Get enough sleep. and learn techniques to manage stress.
- Surround yourself with positive people. Make sure those in your life are positive, supportive people whom you can depend on to give helpful advice and feedback. Negative people may increase your stress level and make you doubt your ability to manage stress in healthy ways.
- Picture your best possible future. Think in detail about a bright vision for your future career, relationships, health, hobbies - and write it down. When you imagine your life going well, research suggests, you'll be happy.
- Focus on your strengths. Each day for a week, think about one of your personal strengths, like kindness, organization, discipline, or creativity. Write down how you plan to use that strength in new ways that day. Then, act on it. People in a study who did that boosted their happiness and wellbeing .

With practice, you can add more positive thoughts to your life and enjoy the benefits that come with optimism.

- Practice positive self-talk. Start by following one simple rule: Don't say anything to yourself that you wouldn't say to anyone else. Be gentle and encouraging with yourself. If a negative thought enters your mind, evaluate it rationally and respond with affirmations of what is good about you. Think about things you're thankful for in your life.

Here are some examples of negative self-talk and how you can apply a positive thinking twist to them:

Negative self-talk	Positive thinking
I've never done it before.	It's an opportunity to learn something new.
It's too complicated.	I'll tackle it from a different angle
I don't have the resources.	Necessity is the mother of invention.
There's no way it will work.	I can try to make it work.
No one wants to communicate with me.	I'll see if I can open more channels of communication.
